Wacky Olympics Results

Jaytown – T 1st

Osgood – T 1st

Anderson - 3rd

Las Craigas - 4th

Martie – 5th

Howard – 6th

Like the ancient Greeks, the cities of NBS performed admirably at our Wacky Olympics, but there are certain performances worthy of praise. In a stunning turn of events, we have two champions. In a tie for first stand the cities of Jaytown and Osgood! Skipping second (since there are two first place winners), Anderson takes third. Points for honor city are great and all, but the most creative moment seen during the Wacky Olympics happened when the city of Las Craigas took a twist on the jump photo event and mounted themselves upon the wooden pillars in order to slip the bonds of the ground we walk.

There was controversy around this photo no doubt – when anyone gets creative, there always is. The issue lay in the ambiguity of the rules. The director of the jump shot, John Beede, described the rules in two ways: everyone in your city must be off the ground, and everyone in your city must be in the air. “In the air” was the definition that won out in the end. But I congratulate Las Craigas in their creativity for taking new perspectives on the task at hand, which is one of the many things NBS is all about.

Federalists vs Nationalist

It is important in this program to know which political party you are involved in. In this program there are only two political parties that you can be a member of, either Federalists, which mirror Republican ideals, or Nationalists, which mirror Democratic ideals. The Federalists believe, for example, in a stronger border, are pro-Second Amendment, and believe in the minimum wage not being raised. Meanwhile, the Nationalists, for example, are pro-immigration, want more gun control, and believe in raising the minimum wage. Every delegate should know what their party stands for.

Legislation

Martie - 40

Osgood - 31

Jaytown - 30

Las Craigas - 28

Anderson - 27

Howard - 22

To kick off the start of Nevada's Boy State, Martie completed 40 bills allowing them to begin in first place. More submitted legislation translates to more opportunities for legislation to pass, so the more legislation the better!

Newspaper Staff

Congratulations to the 2018 session of Nevada Boys State Newspaper Staff. Led by the editor in chief Regan Divar from the city of Jaytown! This year's newspaper staff consists of 5 Nationalists and 1 Federalist.

Jaytown: Regan Divar
(Editor in Chief)

Martie: Milan Gladhill

Osgood: Grey Garcia

Howard: Nick Fischer

Las Craigas: Ethan Lueck

Anderson: Axel Arriaga
